

CERAMIC CREATIONS

BY FRANKOMA

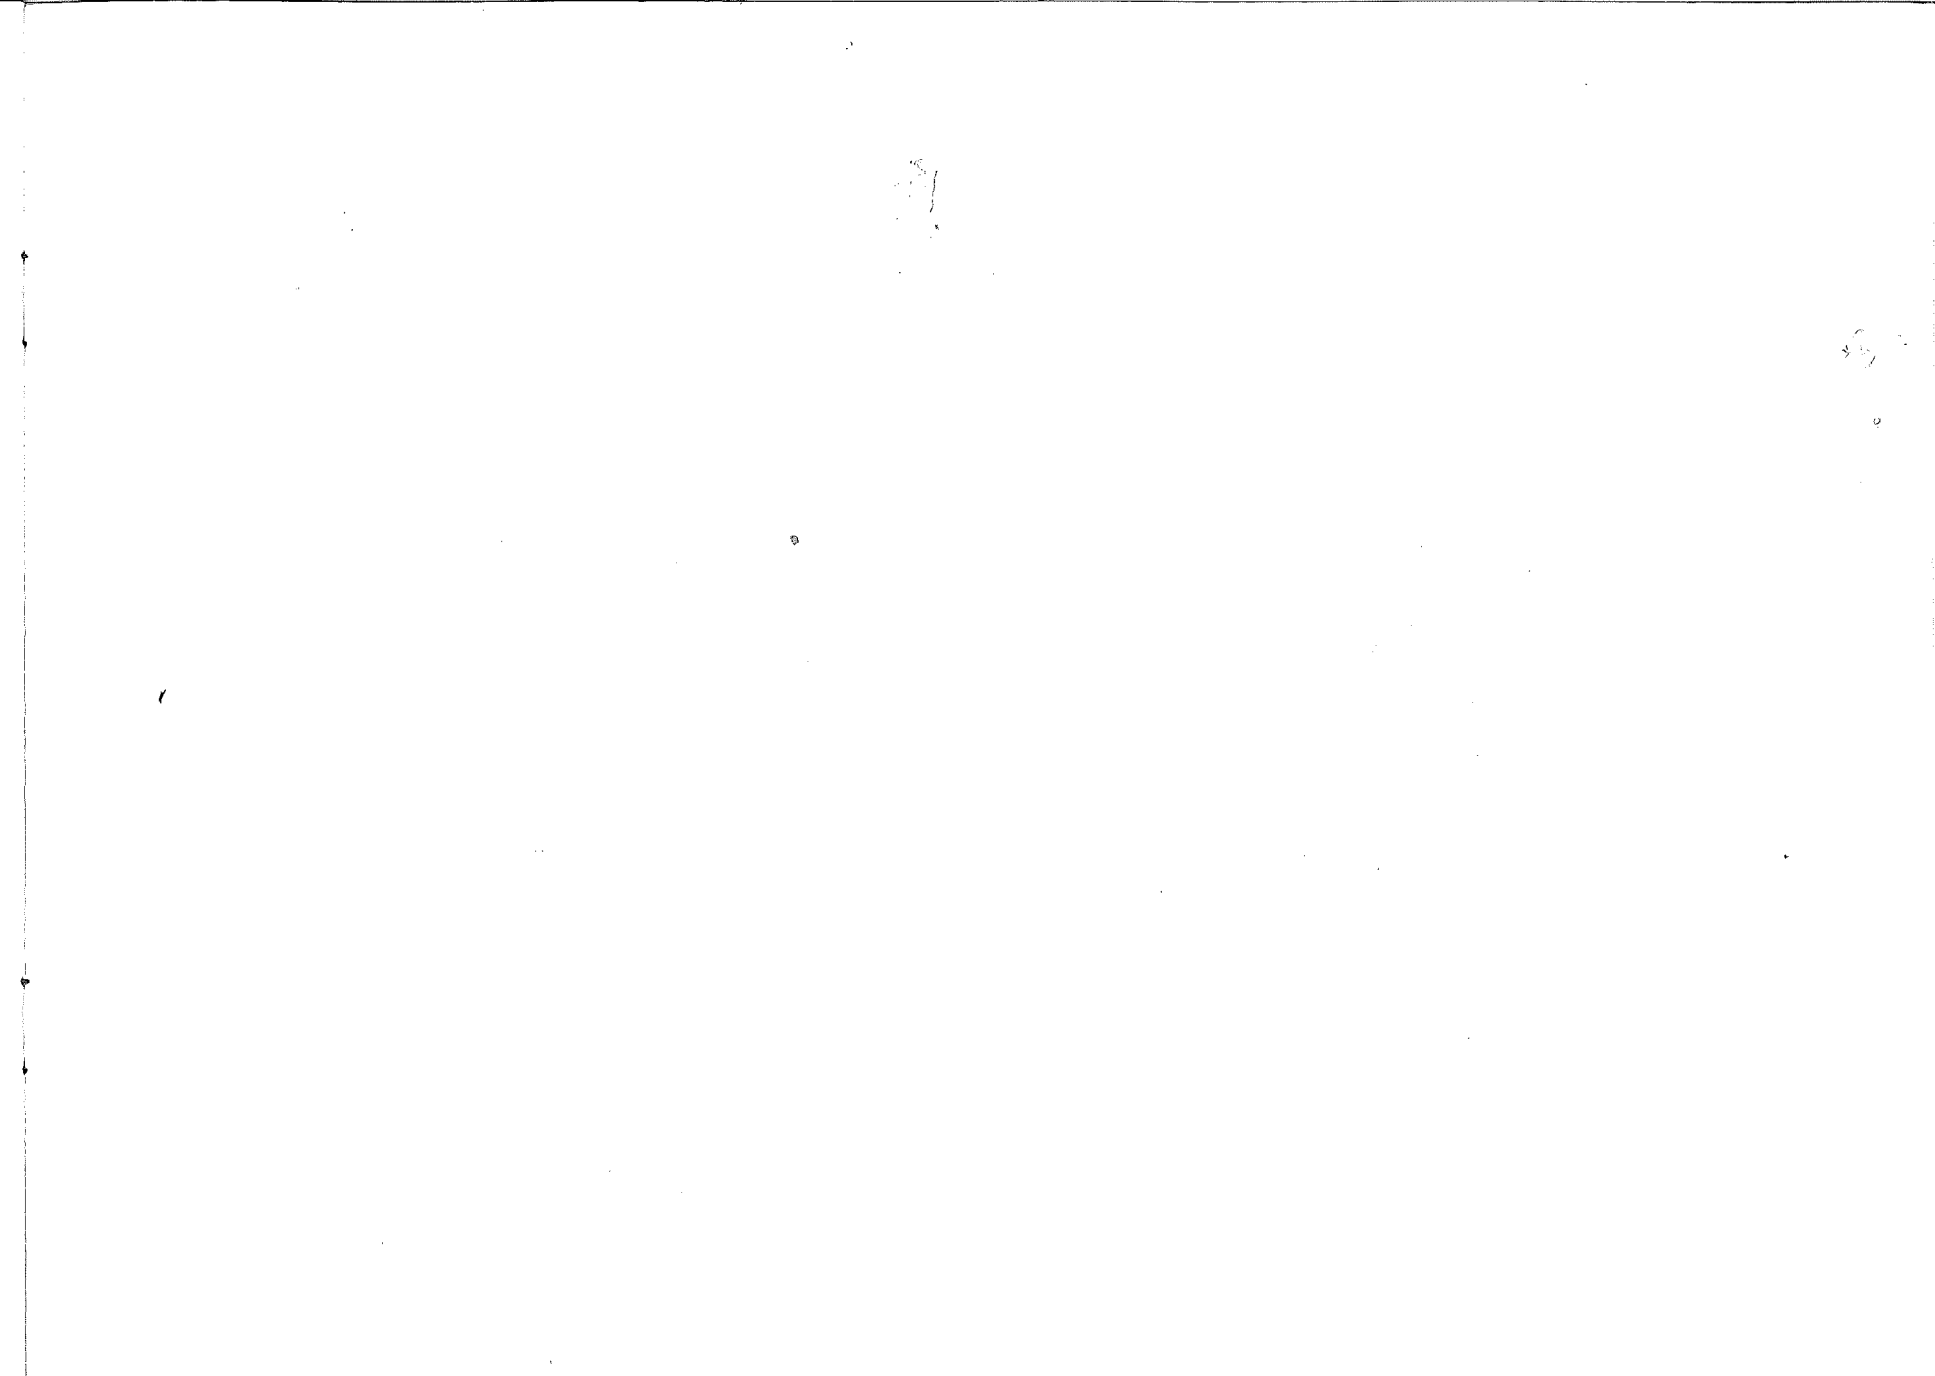

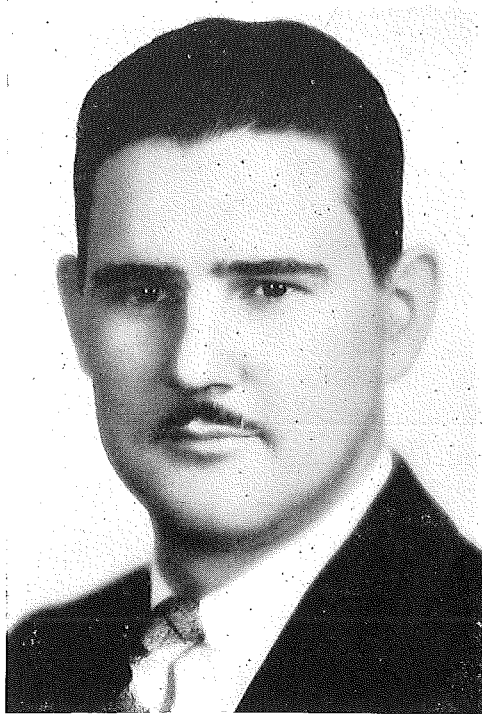

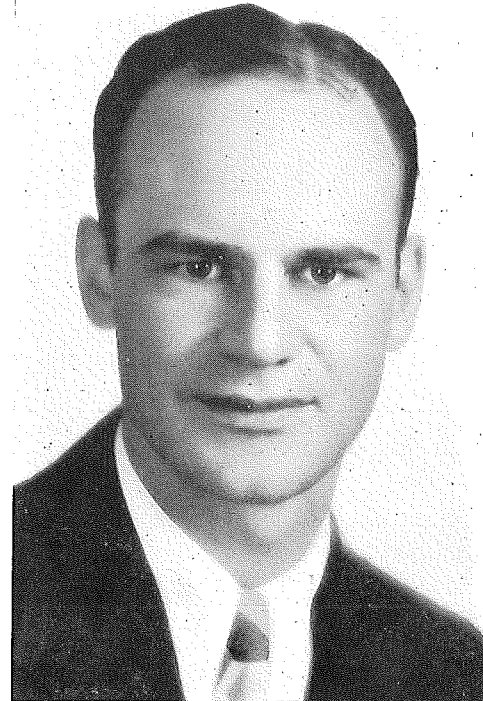

The Frankoma Potteries was formed for the sole purpose of producing a Ceramic Art of the finest character possible, to sell at a popular price. Each piece is designed in their own studios, and made from Oklahoma clays. The line of unusual glazes are produced in their own laboratories. They have become rightfully famous for their production of "Utility Art"—art that is useful. Their Ceramic Sculpture is also a valuable contribution to Creative Art.

MR. JOHN N. FRANK

John N. Frank, president of the company, and designer of Frankoma Pottery, has been instructor in Ceramic Art at The University of Oklahoma for the past eight years. He is a graduate of The Chicago Art Institute and has done research work in other leading Ceramic Schools. His pieces have been exhibited in nearly every state in the union, including many of the fine art museums.

MR. JOSEPH R. TAYLOR

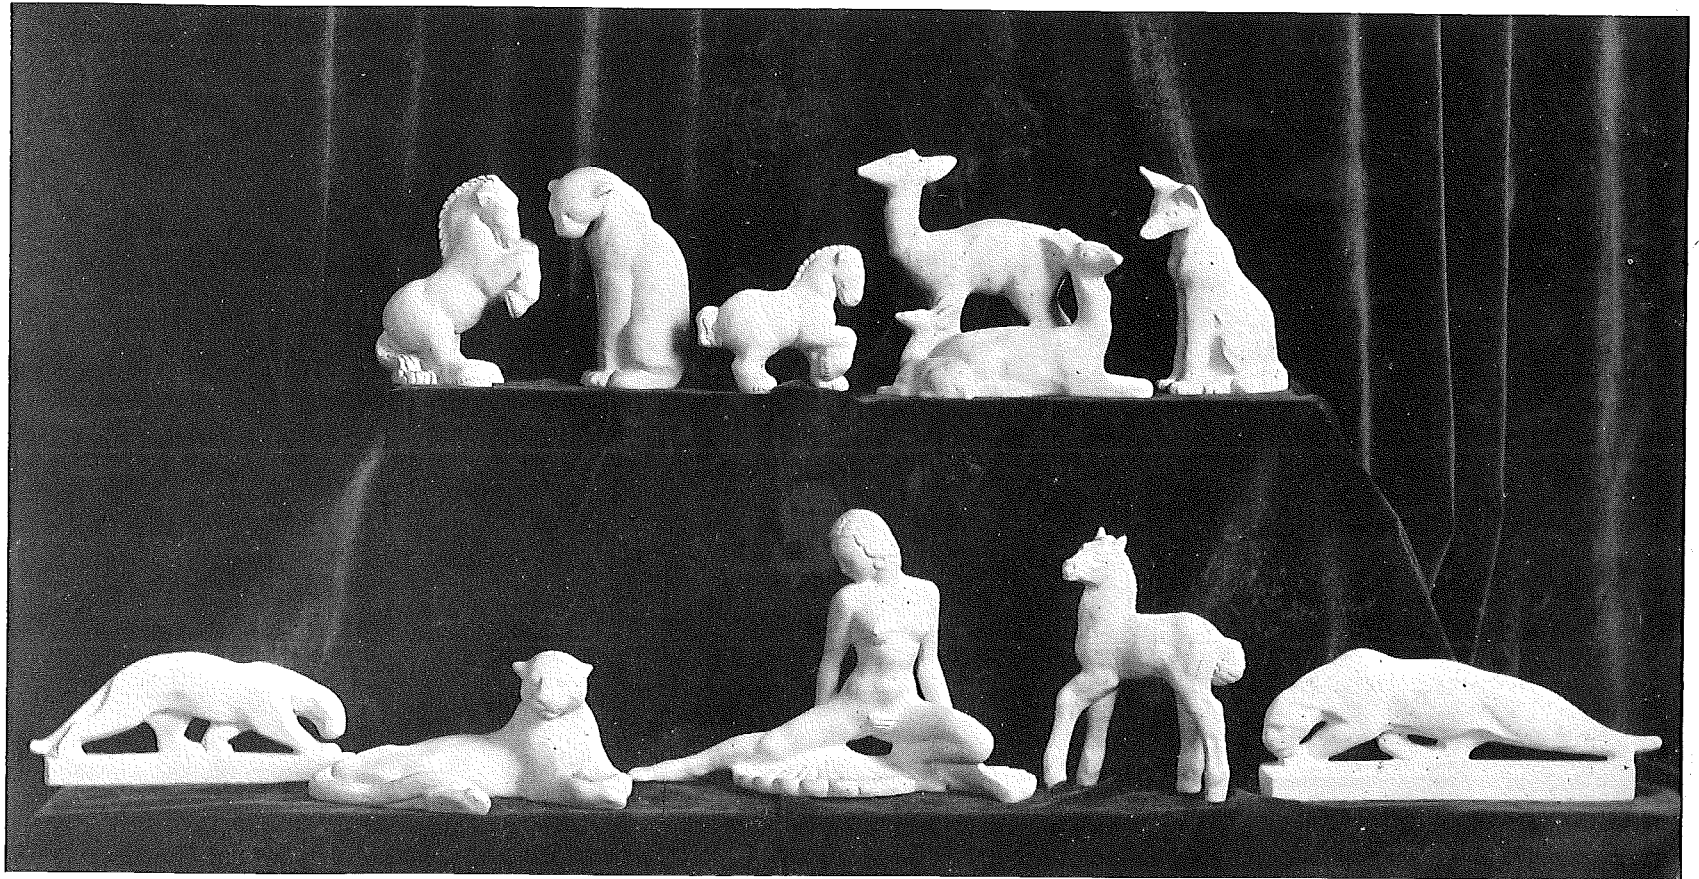

Mr. Joseph R. Taylor, one of America's leading sculptors, and at present head of the Department of Sculpture in The University of Oklahoma, has designed the sculpture reproduced by Frankoma. He is a graduate of the University of Washington where he received his Masters degree in Sculpture in 1932.
