The PLAINSMAN Collection

Color is such an indispensable part of today's decor and nothing allows the wide range of colors and textures in ceramics as Frankoma's red-firing clay. Frankoma's rutile art glazes—Prairie Green and Desert Gold—which have identified our unique tableware around the world, can only be produced on colored clays. By applying these glazes in various thicknesses according to pattern and design, the red body is revealed through the glaze yielding a beautiful mottled effect when fired.

The original "Elephant Mug" was created for the National Republican Woman's Club in 1968 and copyrighted by Frankoma in 1969. The "Donkey Mug" was created in 1975. The mugs are Frankoma stock items available during the dated year only. Each year is a different color. President's and Vice President's names on respective mugs in inaugural year's only.

In 1965, the late John Frank, artist and founder of Frankoma Pottery, created the first annual Christmas plate made in America. The plates are based on the Christmas story and the life of Christ, inspiration for more art in all the various media than any subject in the history of the world.

Eight and one half inches in diameter, the plates are done in a semi-translucent Della Robbia white glaze. The master mold was signed by Mr. Frank himself through 1973. Since 1974, the master mold is signed by his daughter, Joniece Frank. All plates are copyrighted and the master mold is destroyed on Christmas Eve. The edition is limited to that year. Past issues no longer available from factory.

Frankoma has earned its position as America's foremost creator of beautiful and practical earthenware. The shapes and crafted designs, the colors and textures created at Frankoma, are unique in American Ceramics. Since 1933, Frankoma has skillfully combined the traditional art of the Native Americans and the spirit of the the American Pioneers with the creative energies of the Great Southwest to mold useful and collectable giftware.

Frankoma is the finest sculpted giftware available. Constant research ensures that the best raw materials and safest processes are utilized in its production. Manufactured by a unique process, the clay body and colored glaze are fused and fired at the maturing point of the clay. Then, the clay body is tempered as the product slowly cools. Because of its ruggedness and durability, Frankoma can be used daily—indoors and outdoors. All of the Frankoma products are dishwasher safe, ovenproof, and microwaveable.

John Frank, originator of Frankoma Pottery, came to Oklahoma from Chicago in 1927. His teaching of Art and Pottery at the University of Oklahoma along with his work with the geological survey—unearthing Oklahoma's clay deposits—were the inspiration for his future venture. In 1933, equipped with one small kiln, a butter churn for mixing clay, a fruit jar for grinding glazes, and a few other crude tools, Mr. Frank established a studio pottery in Norman, Oklahoma. Three years later, he resigned his teaching position to pursue his passion for pottery art. Working side by side with his devoted wife, Grace Lee, he set out to create beautiful products to enhance everyday life. By 1938 the studio had become too small, and the first factory was relocated from Norman to its present site in Sapulpa. The Franks were determined to use Oklahoma clays for their pottery. First, a clay from Ada was used; then in 1954, a red clay dug at Sapulpa's Sugar Loaf Hill became the base for all Frankoma Pottery, giving it its unique terra cotta coloration.

Today, Frankoma is proud to continue the sculpted art heritage originated by John Frank while blending modern technology into manufacturing techniques. This contemporary look, offered in a broad color palette and enhanced by hand painting and High Definition Imaging, augments and strengthens Frankoma's prized traditional collectable products.
